The Magic of Myths and Legends

Participants in the ArtsLiteracy Project's Weekend Workshop will experience a range of new activities representing every portion of the Performance Cycle, the ArtsLiteracy Project's instructional framework.

The Performance Cycle provides a structure for teaching challenging texts in elementary and secondary school classrooms using performance in rigorous and creative ways. The cycle guides literacy curriculum work in our "Page to the Stage" classes at Brown Summer High School, in artist/teacher school year partnerships, and in all teacher and artist professional development workshops.

Workshops will also explore designing ArtsLiteracy curricula for school-age youth.

Fall 2002 Workshop Participant

The ArtsLiteracy Project, based in the Education Department at Brown University, began in January 1997 on the premise that partnerships between practicing teachers and professional artists create powerful literacy learning opportunities for students.

The ArtsLiteracy Project prepares teachers and artists to improve student literacy through the performing arts. The twofold mission is: 1) to provide a year-round professional development program for teachers and artists linking performing arts to literacy and 2) to provide challenging academic and artistic opportunities for students.
